TMS in national Summer Reading Challenge top 100

By ALISON ALOISIO

Ninety-six thousand minutes and counting.

That's the collective time Telstar Middle School students have spent reading so far this summer. Telstar currently ranks 74th (as of Wednesday) in total minutes among thousands of schools around the world taking part in the Scholastic Summer Reading Challenge, sponsored by the book company of the same name.

The kids choose their own books and record their minutes online.

Two summers ago more than 8,000 schools participated, according to the Scholastic website. Last summer more than 52 million total minutes were logged.

The idea to get TMS students involved was the brainchild of school librarian Kelly Fraser and English teacher Lindsay Luetje.

'Taps' over Songo

On many a summer evening, residents around Songo Pond hear Lainey Cross play "Taps" on her trumpet from her dock. She's been doing it for years. "I think I first learned to play taps at about age 14," she said. "I started playing at the pond one Memorial Day at sunset after I had marched in four parades in high school, and decided it was a nice thing to do at sunset. I do not have a regular schedule or time. I play when I think of it. Some nights when the lake is smooth, I can even hear my own echo. One summer a man came by in his sailboat and asked my mom, who was sitting on our dock, if "the lad" would be playing taps. She replied "you'll find that the lad is a lass." I could often hear applause coming from their camp even before I knew who lived there. I also have a cheering section a few camps down at the Head's camp. I have played in memory of lost loved ones for family members around the pond, and at military funerals."

Greenwood woman charged with cruelty to horses in Bethel

By ALISON ALOISIO

A Greenwood woman was charged last Thursday (a hot day) with cruelty to animals, for allegedly leaving two horses in a metal, closed-up barn in Bethel with no food or water.

The horses were housed on property owned by Larry Smith, who several years ago was found guilty of cruelty to animals for the treatment of his own horses and cows.

But, said Animal Control Officer Sue Milligan, "the care of these horses has nothing to do with him."

Angel L. Kist, 32, was arrested by Oxford County Deputy Mike Parshall at the barn, at 364 Vernon Street, and was later released on bail.

The horses were taken from the barn by Maine Animal Welfare agents.

Two other horses had previously been seized by the state, according to Milligan.

She said she has received other complaint calls recently

Former Bethel planning assistant wins national GIS-project competition

By ALISON ALOISIO

Sarah Tucker of Bethel recently won a national competition for her GIS project, designing more efficient snowplow routes for the town of Bethel.

Tucker, a former planning assistant for the town and now its assessing assistant/GIS technician, did the project as part of her work toward an associate's degree in spatial technology at White Mountains Community College in Berlin, N.H.

Wood products turning a corner in Locke Mills

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Wood shavings and sawdust are flying in Locke Mills — on both sides of Route 26.

The activity is a far cry from this time last year, when the former Saunders Brothers mill complex sat idle, its windows boarded up against the possibility of vandalism.

Across the road, the two-bay garage on a 7-acre parcel of mill property was also locked and unused.

But after several false starts, the mill had at that point been sold, and the activity was soon to begin.

"The auction was July 7. We took possession of the property on Aug. 6, started hiring people in September, and took our first order October ninth," said co-owner Louise Jonaitis.

"So it's been 10 months since we began sales here, and we've met our goal — our first-year goal, which was $1 million of sales. Next year's goal is $2.5 million."

And the mill has been hiring. It now employs 26 people, with 14 working 40-hour weeks, and most of the remainder either 32 or 24 hours.

The mill has also expanded its product line, from dowels, furniture pins and other small items, to rolling pins and furniture.

After buying the Saunders Mill, Jonaitis purchased the Moosehead Furniture mill in Monson, and moved its production to Locke Mills.

The mill also landed a large contract with Scandinavian furniture maker IKEA, which sells to a global market.

With growth comes complexity, and Saunderson Brothers at Locke Mills has begun setting up the organizational systems necessary for managing such complexity.

'MISTREATED' BY OCSD

To the Editor:

I feel it is necessary to write to you because of the law enforcement log appearing in your paper recently.

Ransom Cole was stopped in Bethel by an Oxford County Deputy. His vehicle had valid registration plates and he was not violating any traffic laws. This was not a legal stop, as there was no cause to stop him. After his stop, the county deputy radioed for advice. Ransom and a fellow deputy heard this call. She stated that she had stopped a vehicle with antique auto plates and wanted to know what to do. This indicates that she stopped the vehicle because of the type of plate that was displayed. This is not legal. It is profiling. This deputy proceeded to remove the registration plates from his vehicle and issue him a summons for an unregistered vehicle. The vehicle was properly registered but now had to be towed at the owner's expense.

Oxford County Sheriff Gallant was phoned to explain what had happened. He said he was not the "go to" person for this problem. He is the boss and should have voided the summons as it was an error.

I wrote to Sheriff Gallant and told him about the incident. I am surprised he did not act on it. He has now enabled the defamation of character of Ransom Cole.

There are other incidents in Bethel when Oxford County deputies have used strong-arm tactics and exceeded their authority, but I do not expect Sheriff Gallant to act on these either.

Bethel residents should not be intimidated. You pay to be protected and should not need to be protected from deputies who are paid and sworn to protect you.

We live in the U.S.A., Maine cities and towns like Bethel. We must not let our rights and freedom be taken from us.

Ransom Cole is a hardworking, honest, and well-liked young man of good character. I know him well. He is my grandson and he has been mistreated.

NONPROFIT GROUP GROWING

To the Editor:

I am excited to announce that the Western Maine Economic Development Council has joined the Bethel Area Nonprofit Collaborative. The WMEDC is affiliated with Community Concepts, Inc., and works to help businesses get started, grow, and succeed by helping business owners in Oxford County navigate marketing, financing, workforce training, development, and community partnerships.

Are you involved with a local nonprofit — whether it's long established or just getting off the ground — and think you could benefit from joining forces with others who are interested in bettering the community? We are actively recruiting new members and we welcome you to inquire. The Bethel Area Nonprofit Collaborative (BANC) meets monthly with the goal of building relationships among the nonprofits in our community in order to share expertise and encourage collaborative programming and fundraising. At our next meeting I will present a mini-workshop regarding what to think about when starting or revamping your organization's website. Members have found that being a part of such a collaborative group has strengthened grant applications, helped them find volunteers, and inspired new projects. We are always open to new members and ideas. If your organization is interested in learning more, please contact me at jsp@bethelmainenonprofits.org or 754-8158. BANC also has a website, including a blog, discussion forum, and list of members at www.bethelmainenonprofits.org.

BANC now has fifteen members representing a wide variety of missions. In addition to WMEDC, members include: the Androscoggin River Watershed Council, the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, the Bethel Outing Club, the Bryant Pond 4-H Camp and Learning Center, the District Exchange and Food Pantry, Gould Academy, the Mahoosuc Arts Council, the Mahoosuc Kids Association, the Mahoosuc Land Trust, Mahoosuc Pathways, SAD 44, the River Valley Healthy Communities Coalition, the University of Maine Cooperative Extension, and the Western Mountains Senior College. We hope that your organization will consider joining us as we work together to continue to make the Bethel area a great place to live, work, and play.

"THE ONLY SAY WE HAD WAS TO ASK THEM TO GIVE US A CHANCE TO GET THE FLOWERS UP," said Bethel Town Manager Jim Doar. The flower-bed islands at both ends of the Bethel Parkway (a state road) have been taken out and their spaces paved over, in order to clear the way for very large truckloads of wind-tower parts bound for Record Hill in Roxbury. The island that was here, by the skate park, will be rebuilt after the last load passes through, sometime in October, Doar said. He was uncertain about the plan for the island at the Route 2 end. The cost of the alterations is being paid by the wind project's contractor, Reed & Reed, of Woolwich. For more, see letter below.

ONCOMING WIND TOWER PARTS ARE MUCH LARGER

To the Editor:

Response to question about transporting wind towers:

Someone wondered why Reed and Reed needed to remove the traffic islands on the Parkway in order to transport wind towers to Record Hill in Roxbury, since many windmill components have already made those turns without a problem. The answer has to do with the size of the windmills and the size of the trucks that carry them.

According to a spokesman from Reed and Reed, the wind towers and blades that were previously transported to New Hampshire were considerably smaller than the ones that are soon coming through Bethel. A lot smaller. The new ones going to Record Hill will be the largest windmills erected in the state of Maine, to date. The trucks that carry the components are 190 feet long, requiring a much larger turning radius. They will have police escorts both fore and aft for their entire trip from the docks in Searsport to the Roxbury area. Three ships are carrying them to the United States: two from Viet Nam and one from Scandinavia.

As of today, July 21, one ship is ahead of schedule, so it is possible we will begin seeing them in Bethel the second week of August.

Another firm will be transporting windmills through Bethel to a different project in the near future.

It is doubtful that any of us can quite picture the magnitude of these ventures yet. Regardless of how one feels about windmills on our mountain tops, it will be interesting and probably exciting to watch them travel through.

BOATERS: WATCH FOR OPEN-WATER SWIMMERS

To the Editor:

Attention to all those who boat on our lakes:

Please be aware that there are people who do open water swimming in our lakes. Although I wear a fluorescent yellow cap, I was nearly run over while swimming across Lake Christopher on the 4th of July. The boat's bow was up in the air, making it hard to see ahead and the small boy who was watching from the bow didn't say a word to the driver of the boat.

As there are several Triathlons in the area that swimmers are training for, and people like me are using swimming as a form of exercise, boaters need to be aware that we are sharing the lakes with them. Just as drivers need to be aware of runners, boaters please be aware of open water swimmers. Much appreciated.

THANKS FOR RUMFORD WHITECAP'S PLEASURES

To the Editor:

We just spent a lovely, idyllic summer's day climbing Rumford Whitecap and picking blueberries. I was reminded of what a special place it is. And I want to express a big thank you to everyone who worked so hard to purchase it for all of us to enjoy. I know in 2006, $600,000-plus was a huge amount of money to raise. But we all did it. And now we have it for generations to come. The Land for Maine's Future Program contributed $243,000 toward the purchase with our tax dollars.

I also want to extend my appreciation to the trail crew of the Mahoosuc Land Trust: Tim Akers, Leon Akers, Bob Iles, John Foster, Dennis Breton, Fred Bailey, Jon Starr, Bob Duplessie, Dan Elliott, Nancy Babcock and David Walker. Our favorite is the "yellow trail." We were pleasantly surprised to see the new water bars and the new trail that bypassed the logging slash. We were equally surprised to discover that the crew had made a whole new section of the "orange trail," crisscrossing the slope and avoiding the very wet stream segment.

And finally, a thank you to the Mahoosuc Land Trust who coordinated the acquisition and is now the steward of Rumford Whitecap, along with all of us. So many people have put their sweat, time and love into making this as enjoyable as possible. Kudos to all.

'Celladore'

From the 1954-1964 Journals of Beckie Bailey, Installment 29
The First Years: Kristie Comes, Winter

The winter sped swiftly by. Each day began with the necessary chores: filling the wood and kindling boxes, putting oil in the kerosene lamps, quick plan for the food for the day. By ten o'clock on fair days, I was ready to snowshoe up to the woods and visit with B.B. and Kristie, then wander off to prune off the dead low branches of hemlock and pine, snip out young moosewoods. I rode on the log sled the last trip down, a never-ending joy. Through the woods we went with the sunlight filtering through the branches and making patterns on the snow. We stopped at the top of the hill to put on bridle chains to keep the load from running over Kristie, then down we went at a smart pace and through the gate, an opening that gazes upon white fields, the low shingled buildings standing out solid against the purple mountains, a wisp of lacy chimney smoke drifting away in the sky.

After lunch a legion of small activities waited. I was putting a rush seat in a Hitchcock chair, working away at cane or splint seats for the chairs that we would use on the porch. I was cutting off or making longer curtains to fit the windows, knitting wool socks, baking bread. One day a week I went to the village to do things for Miss Fan at her house. She always asked me if I was making some pretty spring clothes and if we had ever fixed the living room.

B.B. found a solution for the ceiling that I did not like, though he insisted that I was exaggerating and that worms did not live in the bark on the beams and drop down. Between the half round poles were sections of plaster in very good condition. It was impossible to take down the logs without the whole ceiling coming too. To put up an entirely new ceiling twenty-four feet by fourteen feet would be costly. B.B. said that he would do the carpenter work and box in the logs if I would do the painting. If I needed heat in there, which he doubted, I could make a fireplace fire. We agreed and his part of the project was accomplished quickly. My part went slowly. There were twelve sections to paint on three sides; each needed a coat of filler and then two coats of paint. It was a backbreaking, neck-twisting, paint-dripping-down-the-arms ordeal, especially the first few that I did. The opposite end of the room seemed as far away as China, but I thought of the enterprises of Genghis Kahn and Vasca de Gama and laughed at myself for my lack of perspective. Since we did not use the room though, I could paint or not as the spirit moved me. When I tired of working on this to-be-completed-in-the-future project, I could go upstairs to the sunny southeast chamber and plod away on more slow-going undertakings. Up there I had several pieces of furniture, all in different stages of being refinished. But in each of these rooms I could walk out at any time, shut the doors, and forget it all.

MT. ABRAM UPDATE

To the Editor:

I'd like to bring the good folks in Greenwood, Bethel and surrounding towns up to speed on developments at Mt. Abram.

As most know, on the evening of July 6, the main base lodge was struck by lightning. It hit the roof of the west end of the building (over the company offices) and surged through the building, exiting on the east end (closest to the summit chairlift). It sparked a major fire in the lodge. We are incredibly fortunate that the building was empty at the time and that no one was hurt.

We owe huge thanks to the fire departments of Greenwood, Woodstock, Bethel, Gilead, West Paris and Newry, all of whom came to assist. They did a fantastic job.

Despite their very best efforts, there is massive damage throughout the lodge. Soon, we will know more about renovations and repairs. Given the time of year and the task at hand, we'll almost certainly be operating base services out of a temporary structure this winter. You might have seen this type of structure at other ski areas; they are versatile, warm and comfortable.

Many loyal Mt. Abram skiers and riders — and members of the community — have called us to offer help. We've been deeply touched by this, and yes, there ARE a few things folks can do to assist us:

1) Stay in touch. Shortly, we'll be launching an interim website at mtabram.com to help keep everyone informed about developments. Right now, the best way to stay abreast is to follow us on Facebook (facebook.com/SkiMfAbram) us! Helpbook (facebook.com/3XNWADrain).

2) Unif we get in touch with others. We lost most of our databases in the fire (score one for off-site backup) and we want to be sure that everyone who loves the mountain is aware of what's going on. To that end, we invite folks to talk with their Mt. Abram friends and make sure they know what's happening. We'll have a mechanism on the website shortly that will enable them to sign up for updates.

3) Send us photos! Our photo archives got burned up too. We need images. If you've got some good action shots, some pretty Mt. Abram views, historical photos or simply a nice shot of the family having a great time, let us know, along with your contact information. Angie Carroll, the newest member of our marketing team, is the contact.

We've set up temporary offices in the Westside Lodge, and we have phone, e-mail and fax capabilities back up and running. And by the way — maintenance crews are working tirelessly on the mountain preparing for the upcoming season. We're up, we're running, and we're absolutely going to be ready to ski and ride.

So that's it for right now. Think snow (not lightning), get ready for a wonderful season, and we'll keep you informed.

MOI I YOCKETT DAYS THANKS

To the Editor:

Organizing any event requires a tremendous amount of commitment in time and resources. Mollycckett Days 2011 was a big success this year due to all that support.

The Bethel Area Chamber staff and board of directors agreed to take on the organizational role two years ago and we are still learning about all the traditions of the day. We need to thank all the businesses who partnered with us to make the day such a success – especially our Presenting Sponsor, Northeast Bank. A complete list of business sponsors can be found in the Mollycoddet Days full page ad that was in the July 14 edition of this newspaper. We would not have been able to orchestrate the event and the fireworks show without their support!

Volunteers are essential and we have many to thank for their time and talents: Doug Alford, Laurence Austin, Matt, Glenn, Grace, Mackenzie, Madison, Olivia and Isaac Bevin, Debra Borchardt, Jim and Carol Bourque, Mike and Eileen Broderick, AJ Carey, Beth Clarke, Frog Jumping Organizer Mame Connors, Betsey Cooper, Al Cressy, Cherri Crockett, Bob and Barb Dion, Courtney Downs, Ben and Fran Etheridge, Steve Etheridge and crew at Rooster's Roadhouse, Victoria Forkus - Miss Mollycockett, Dave Freiday, Dillon and Paula Gillies, Jonathan, Kate, Rose, Rachael and Abbie Goldberg, Susan Herlihy, Susan Isham, Parade Coordinator Matty Leach, Jim Mann and Maggie Kroenke of Mt. Mann Jewelers, Karen McElroy, Scott and Cheryl Mills, Fred Nolte, Jeff, Pattie and Jonathan Parsons and the Bethel Outdoor Adventure crew, Gabe and Jessie Perkins, Ian Phelps, James Piccirillo, Joyce Rona, Master of Ceremonies Kevin Rosenberg, Karen Saito, Lynn Saxton, Mary Scanlon, Martha Siegel, Pamela Senese, Peter, Sarah and Samantha Southam, Ann Speth, Kelly and Gabrielle Stone, Bill Strauss, Lloyd Sweetser, Hiram Towle, Bob Westfall, Paula and Travis Wheeler, Donna and Lynne Whipple, Lynn Wilson, Doug and Matt Zinchuk.

If you are interested in helping, in any way, to make future Mollycoddett Days a success — or to help with the other chamber events, please give our offices a call or stop in.

CORRECTION: In a letter to the editor published last week, John R. Davis of South Paris identified his children as "Amerasian," but the word was inadvertently changed (during spell check) to "American." The Citizen regrets the error.

Local post offices on closure list

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Three Bethel-area post offices are on a list for possible closure this year, according to a press release from Sen. Olympia Snowe's office. East Andover, Stoneham and North Waterford are among 34 on the list of 3,700 offices nationwide, released on Tuesday. The Paris Hill office is also listed. According to Snowe's statement, in an attempt to cut costs after reporting a $2.6 billion March 31, the USPS believes it can save $200 million by closing 3,700 of its 32,000 post offices nationwide. According to the USPS, over 3,000 of the offices identified reported less than $27,500 in annual revenue. Said Snowe, "Financial challenges faced by the USPS should not preclude the preservation of universal postal service and convenient community access. It is critical we carefully assess the potential impact of these proposed closures, especially as it relates to service in rural communities. I am encouraged USPS intends to work with community retailers to continue providing postal services in affected communities and I will closely monitor this situation to ensure that, in the event of any post office closures, USPS continues to meet the needs of rural customers in Maine and nationwide."

New AES teachers named

ANDOVER—The following excerpted letter, from SAD 44 Superintendent Dave Murphy, appeared last week on the website dedicated to saving the Andover Elementary School: "I am very pleased to be able to inform you that I have approved transfer requests from two experienced and successful elementary school teachers to move to the Andover School for the coming school year. Mrs. Tracy Morin will join the Andover staff as the new grade 4/5 teacher. ... Mrs. Morin has a Master's degree in Math and has also served as the elementary math curriculum leader in the past. Ms. Beth Clarke will step in as the new K/1 teacher ... and will also be recommended as the teaching principal for the school. ... There will be an informal event scheduled before the start of the school year for parents, students and community members to visit the school and meet these new staff members. ... I hope you will join me in welcoming them to the Andover School."

"Based on the fact that we all feel that the mill as a whole has been successful, we've been doing some forecasting and setting up new systems, anticipating that we're going to get more sales. We've been doing that for the past two weeks," Jonaitis said Tuesday, in a small conference room where large whiteboards on two walls were covered with roughed-in diagrams of emerging organizational structures.

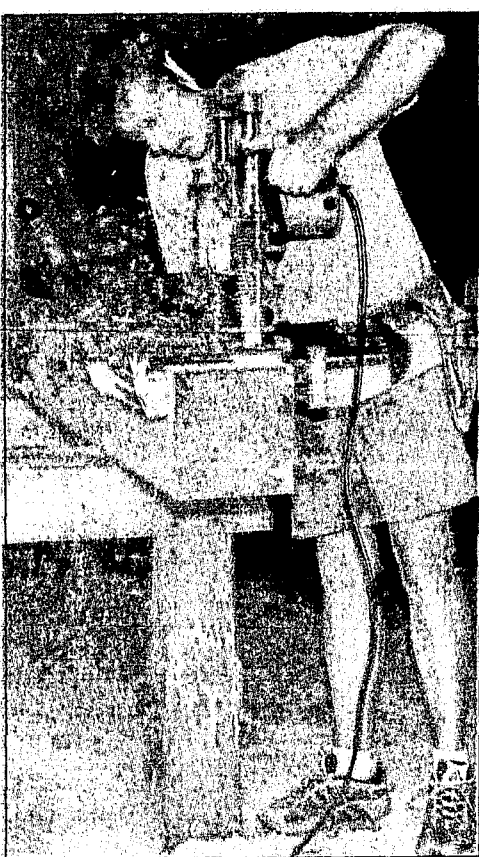

"You evolve, and put in your systems as you need them," she said.

"It's been interesting; switching jobs, and getting people to do more of what they've found out they like to do."

"We're no longer a fledgling start-up. We actually know what we're doing now, but we'll never lose our start-up spirit, because that's what it took to make it work."

Across Route 26, the corporate structure was simpler, and likely to remain so.

Chris Barstow, owner of Specialty Timberworks LLC, worked alone in the small garage, cutting a mortise in an 8-by-8 inch white pine beam. Barstow purchased the seven-acre parcel and garage in February, after Greenwood selectmen opted not to pursue an offer from Saunders Brothers to have the town purchase it.

For the moment Barstow is a one-man show.

"Sometimes I'll have three or four guys on for most of the year," he said, "but right now it's a little slow.

"When I get projects, I'll get other joiners to come in for two or three months. I use to do that, traveling around the country, doing what we call 'itinerant' timber framing."

But Barstow is also planning for growth.

He plans to begin by expanding the 28-by-28 foot garage, adding office space and enlarging the workshop area.

Then he hopes to move about 100 feet up the hillside behind the garage, to a level site that once held the mill's large dry sheds.

"My whole dream is to have two big buildings up there. One for storage of timber, so I don't have anything outside. We'll see how it goes."

"There's room for all sorts of things to happen here, Barstow said, "I'd like to do some furniture stuff here, too."

"After we move up on the hill [the garage] might just stay as a cabinet shop."

He also said he has discussed establishing a tie with the business across the road.

"We'll use maybe 300 or 400 pegs in a home project," Barstow said, "and if I can buy it from my neighbor, that would Tucker won first place July 10 in the first annual GeoTech Center National Geospatial Skills Competition, held in San Diego.

The competition was open to community college students who have studied geospatial technology, according to the competition's website. Students who achieved a minimum required score on an initial exam became eligible to submit a five-minute video on their project. A panel of judges selected the top six, who traveled to San Diego for the Esri International User Conference, a gathering of some 12,000 GIS professionals.

Tucker's presentation (also on YouTube) was voted the best by the audience.

Her video describes Bethel as a small town in snow country, near Sunday River Ski Resort.

She then notes that the town plows a 150-mile loop of roads using five trucks. The maps used to guide plowing were drawn manually on a town tax map. Tucker decided to use GIS technology to set up a model to save miles on the trucks and improve public safety through more efficient plowing of priority routes.

She created a hierarchy of roads, with school bus and commuter routes having the highest priority, followed by residential and state roads. The criteria called for each road to be plowed twice, once in each direction. She also used input from plow drivers on priority locations, such as steep or heavily traveled stretches of road.

She gathered GPS information on road locations and distances and plugged it into her program.

The result: under her model redundancies appeared to be reduced and priority roads were plowed more frequently, she said. A total of more than 480 plow-miles would have been saved last winter over the course of 16 storms.

Jim Doar, Bethel town manager, said Tucker's plan will be used for laying out plow routes for the coming winter.

Reading

"We were talking about how every year kids were given books for the summer, and many didn't read them and do the project assigned, or they did it the night before," said Fraser last week. "That isn't the point. The point is to get the kids to read."

Studies show that reading through the summer prevents students from losing skills they gain during the school year, she said.

The Scholastic program seemed like a promising one to Fraser and Luetje.

TMS students have enjoyed the opportunity to buy books at low prices at Scholastic Book Fairs, held regularly at TMS, said Fraser.

The Summer Challenge provides incentives to students for reaching milestone minutes, by awarding them book coupons and other prizes, so the women thought linking the two was a promising prospect.

In June they organized a school-wide assembly to explain the Challenge. They gave each student a password to participate. They raffled off 50 copies of the popular "Hunger Games" trilogy book. They also handed out bags of books to other students to read for the summer, and a list of local library hours.

On July 1, they opened the library so kids could renew and/or check out books. Fraser has been tracking the total TMS minutes online. The number of participating students is not available, but Fraser believes it must be substantial.

"They're doing great," she said.

Recently she ran into two students and asked how their reading was going. "They talked about what books they were going to read and lend to each other," she said. "I've never seen anything like this before."

On Aug. 1, the school library will be open again from 3 to 6 p.m. to exchange books, with free ice cream provided.

The program ends Aug. 31, when parents will sign off on their child's total reading minutes.

The Crescent Park Elementary School is also taking part in the Challenge, and as of Tuesday was ranked 290th.

about Kist's horses, but none of them came from Smith.

Thursday's call, she said, came from Smith's attorney, Jarrod Crockett.

In 2007 Smith was found guilty of criminal charges for failing to protect a cow and calf from the heat, and of depriving them of clean conditions by keeping them in a trailer for two weeks in the summer; depriving two horses of clean conditions; and depriving a mare and her foal, born outdoors in December, of food, medical attention, shelter and protection from the weather.

He was also found guilty on a civil charge of failing to maintain a structurally sound shelter for livestock.

The court ruled then that he could keep possession of three Percheron horses, but otherwise faced a lifetime ban on the ownership of animals, except for household pets.

Milligan, who has served as ACO since 2009, said that last fall a lease was drawn up by an attorney to allow Kist's horses to stay on Smith's property.

"The D.A. reviewed it, and as long as [Smith] kept his distance and had nothing to do with the horses, he's fine," she said.

Landlord had a history, but did the right thing here, according to Oxford County Sheriff's Department Deputy Mike Parshall.

As for horses currently owned by Smith, Milligan said there is only one, one of the three Percherons, currently on his property.

"That horse is fine, and appears well taken care of," she said. "I do occasional inspections based on the court order."

Crockett on Thursday's events

Crockett, who said he had drawn up the lease last fall, said Tuesday that Smith had contacted him last Thursday morning to say there were horses in the barn, and Smith wondered what to do because of the restrictions on him.

Crockett said he called Milligan, then went to the barn himself and found the animals without food or water. They were very thin, he said. "The horses had been abandoned," said Crockett.

Parshall then arrived, followed by Milligan and then Kist, he said.

According to Parshall, he arrested Kist after she became confrontational.

She was taken to the Oxford County Jail.

Crockett said Smith believed that Kist had removed the animals from the barn the day before, but had apparently returned them later.

"If it wasn't for Larry, the horses might not have been found," said Crockett.

Parshall said of Smith, "Larry Smith is not implicated in this."

"He was a responsible party in this investigation."

Bethel

By DON BENNETT

My remark last week about the silliness of a requirement for a selectmen's vote to allow a bingo game (Chicken Chip Casino) on the common during Molly Ockett Day drew some comments. Basically, they were "Augusta required us to do it." If, back in 1776, Nathan Hale - when he was about to be hanged by the British - knew that the future would have an Augusta, Maine, he might not have regretted that he had only one life to give for his country.

Carter Farm barn grows
As you drive along the Middle Intervale Road these days you cannot miss seeing the huge new barn going up at the Carter Middle Intervale Farm. It dominates the entire landscape. David Berry is the builder in chief. His main concern is to make the barn's frame strong enough to withstand strong winds from the west that have and will sweep across the river and field into the new barn. He plans to add diagonal bracing throughout all of the vertical studding. Outside dimensions for the structure are 96 by 100 feet. It was the first time that I have met Mr. Berry. I have chased his excellent reputation for building around town for the last several years but never had a chance to meet him in person.

New work at Carter Cross Country Ski Center
Last Friday John Kane, Oxford, and Tony Billings, South Paris, were finishing up a custom saw mill job at the Carter

XC Ski Center. Anne Carter had told me earlier this summer that they were going to enlarge the main ski lodge and store at the XC center.

What is somewhat unusual about this job is that the timbers and planking were sawed on site using a portable saw mill. After seeing the size of stacked lumber, it is hard to believe that the saw mill could handle such a job. It was a Honda saw mill.

Crossing the river
With the actual installation of a water line under the river at West Bethel not far off, is anyone interested in how it was done originally? The first proposal made in 1890 was for the Bethel Water Company to hang the water main under the Androscoggin Bridge. Voters tabled this proposal. So that left the river bed crossing to Plan B, a combination of Italian laborers and use of coffer dams, under the supervision of John J. Moore of Hingham, Mass., construction superintendent. In 1890 there were no dams along the river and in summer months the water level could drop so low that mills on the river had to shut down. According to Google Earth, the crossing in Mayville could have been a distance of 250 feet or less. Measuring the same way at West Bethel, the distance is 420 feet.

Don Katlin said that in the 1980's when Richard Enright was BWD superintendent, he and the trustees hired Al Hodgdon (A.E. Hodgdon Consulting Engineer) to draw up a contingency plan to handle a water main break where the main crossed the river in Mayville. In 2005 when the break occurred, possibly due to vibration and pounding caused by construction of the recreational bridge, the Hodgdon plan was implemented and Cross Excavation was the contractor. In this instance, the pipe did not break but appeared to have been pulled apart at a connection.

Natural gas project

Minutes of the July 11 selectmen's meeting: Chris Garner was in to discuss with the board his Natural Gas Proposal. He would like to have an Ad-Hoc committee set up to explore the possibility of building a Natural Gas Station in Bethel. A lengthy discussion ensued, ending with the following motion. Don Bennett (selectman) moved and Robert Everett seconded to work with Chris Garner to form an Ad-Hoc Committee to study the concept of bringing Natural Gas to the Town of Bethel. All were in favor.

Mr. Garner has published Bethel Area Natural Gas info online. Goals listed in this publication read: 1. Help the Bethel area lower its tax burden; 2. Lower heating costs for businesses and residents; 3. Help improve the local infrastructure; 4. Generate revenue for the town and 5. Generate local jobs.

Maine Public Utilities Commission information on this subject: Where is natural gas service offered in Maine? 1.

Northern Utilities currently serves customers in the greater Portland area, Lewiston, Auburn, and Kittery. 2 Bangor Gas serves customers in Bangor, Brewer, Old Town, Orono and Veazie and 3. Maine Natural Gas currently serves customers in Windham, Gorham, Bowdoin Topsham and Brunswick.

Each of these companies may expand to serve additional municipalities as new customers request service. Companies typically choose to expand when the revenues from new customers cover the costs to provide service. Often a utility will expand its mains to a large, "anchor" customer and then seek to add small customers located along the main.

Farmers Market

Summer season has moved into prime time for farmers' markets and Bethel's is a good example. Saturday there were five "farm stands" open at the Park Street Farmers Market: the Northern Lights Farm from Upton, Abbotts Maple Syrup and Veggies from Sumner, Vegetables Dance - Middle Intervale Farm; the other half of the same farm, with vegetables, pork and beef and the Maine Lobster boys from Cape Elizabeth. Raspberries are the "in" fruit right now

Planning Board

At the July 13 meeting the following projects were on the agenda. Carter's XC Ski Center, Middle Intervale, signing off on a site plan review; Lisa Freda's property at North Bethel; determination of subdivision applicability; Morning Star Massage, Bethel village, sign application; Sunday River Station, North Bethel, sign applications; Sunday River Skiway, sign application at Mayville; Skillings Road - intersection of Skillings Road and the Songo Road, site plan review; Locke Summit Estates in North Bethel, extension of subdivision approval and Planer mill building expansion in South Bethel at Hancock Lumber, site plan amendment.

Sunday River Station's project involved signs on Route 2 and Martin Lane; signs would be for seasonal operation of a hot dog and ice cream stand next to Puzzle Mountain Pies. It is diagonally across Route 2 from the MDOT picnic area. Sunday River Skiway is using, has leased, the former Schiavi lot in Mayville for signs and has a chondola on display.

Issues discussed by the Board concerning Locke Summit Estates dealt with utilities installation, road surface - gravel versus pavement - and extending the project's letter of credit. A motion was favorably voted that Phase 1A has been substantially completed. Details of the meeting are published in Board minutes in the Town of Bethel Website.

History Club

Make sure to visit the wonderful show of landscape paintings at the Moses Mason Exhibit Hall open six days a week from Tuesday through Sunday 1 to 4 p.m. Young people and students who have an interest in painting are encouraged to see how painters of another day were themselves attracted by the natural beauty around us and how they captured it in their paintings.

Graphical history resources may tend to be overlooked when researching a topic or family. Old photographs have a lot to tell about people, places and events. They can round out a purely documentary account of people's lives - more than just adding a thousand words.

Photos chosen as examples of special interest this week are: No 1. A 1956 photo of Ethel Bisbee (the teacher not the school building) talking with school superintendent Donald Christie, Album 14. A picture of the teacher can tell us a lot about what a young student might absorb in an early disciplined setting. No 2. A photo of two well-dressed gentlemen on an ice boat at Songo Pond near the turn of the century - a life-style story - look at the coat and ties being worn while sporting, Album 11. The ice boat is a far cry from the fiberglass models of today. No. 3 is a photograph labeled "Last Train ran in 1965." It is a steam engine powered passenger excursion train passing through Bethel in September 1965, Album 4. Although regular passenger service ended in 1960, this photograph shows what the town's daily passenger trains looked like to trackside train-watchers. (Question: did the Grand Trunk ever run diesel locomotives for its regular passenger service?)

One of the new twists in displaying old photographs is to have the photograph printed on canvas and framed for hanging in your home. Photos such as class and family reunions are favorites for this kind of treatment. Although the original photo was printed on paper and has to be converted to a digital image, doing so is a very easy step. In fact all you need to do is take a new picture of the old photo using a digital camera.

Norm Milliard, Artistic Endeavors, located across Route 2 from my house has done a number of these jobs of photo printing, mounting and framing. He can also re-photograph the original for you. For example you may have a black and white photo of a family home that is long gone. Such a photo can be reproduced on canvas in a 24 by 36 inch size, stretched over a wood frame like oil paintings and framed in a style that matches the era of the home.

Many of the photographs I use in publishing history articles in the Bethel Journals website are copies of BHS collection photos, used with permission and credit of course.

West Bethel

By LORRIE HOEH

Mike and I and our friends, Hank and Shirley Bowen of Lansdale, Penn., arrived back at the Garden of Eden Tuesday afternoon after having spent three nights on a beautiful island in Penobscot Bay. Saddleback Island is owned by the Maine Coast Heritage Trust, which has a roomy one-room cabin there, where we stayed quite comfortably.

We met Cap'n Bill of Quarry Adventures in Stonington for a three-mile boat ride on the "Nigh Duck" to the island, arriving about 5:30. We toted our gear, food, and about four gallons of drinking water from the rocky beach to the log cabin, about 200 yards. The cabin is equipped with two bunk beds and two double beds, sleeping up to eight. It has a four-burner propane stove, a sink, a 50-gallon rain barrel (for wash water), and kerosene lanterns. A covered deck looks out on a picture-postcard view of Penobscot Bay.

Saturday night we feasted on lobsters bought from Cap'n Bill and then were early to bed. Sunday morning was overcast at dawn but soon turned into a bluebird day. We hiked a well-marked trail to Eastern Cove, which I thought should be named Mussel Cove. We waded into the cove at low tide and soon pulled a bucketful of beautiful blue mussels from under the rockweed. Mike even found telltale holes in the sand and dug about a dozen steamer clams as well.

The bay was calm as a mill pond all day, serene and quiet. Our daughter and son-in-law, Cyndy and Paul Stancliff, arrived in early afternoon from Camden with their friend, Peter Smith, on Peter's boat. They also filled a bucket with mussels, visited for a while, then headed to Russ Island to camp for the night. Mike and I took a very brief "dip" in 61-degree water in a nearby cove. Emphasis on "brief."

Dinner was steamed mussels and clams, green beans from the Bethel garden, and chanterelle mushrooms found on the island.

We were wakened at about 4:30 a.m. Monday by the deep thrum of boat engines. The lobstermen were at work again.

Sunday's peace and quiet was a fond memory as the engines kept on thrumming all day long.

However, lobster lovers that we are, we couldn't complain too much.

We took the trail to the north end of the island where there is a campsite for public use, then continued on a complete circuit of the island. This involved some bushwhacking and considerable scrambling over rocks and boulders to pick up the other end of the trail.

I learned something new on this hike. At one point I grabbed a pine tree trunk for balance and got a glob of pine sap on my hand.

You know that stuff just doesn't wash off. Well, I'm here to tell you that "Off" works pretty well as a solvent and took that sap "off" very cleanly. That's my timely tip of the week.

Mike caught one little harbor pollock in the morning, which gave us each a taste to go with our Bethel peas, squash, and lettuce, along with some packaged beans and rice. It was a most satisfying meal in spite of wishing we had more fish.

We heard some serious rain in the wee hours before daybreak on Tuesday and were picturing a soggy trip down to the cove with our gear and then on the boat back to Stonington. While we saw little or no sun, however, we lucked out because the rain had stopped by breakfast time. The ride back was pleasant and uneventful, although we did see some petrels on the way - "Mother Carey's chickens."

MCHT does a wonderful job of protecting Maine's coastline and islands, at the same time helping and encouraging other land trusts around the state, including our own Mahoosuc Land Trust. They deserve our support, and they certainly have our thanks for letting us share beautiful Saddleback Island!

STERLING AND EASTER HONORED BY GRANGE—Rumford Grange 115 held its annual Open House July 16 at the Grange Hall in Rumford Center. During the event Rumford Selectman Jeff Sterling (left) was named Citizen of the Year. Jeff, a long-time Sunday River Resort employee, has lived in the area for many years and has been very active in local organizations. Formerly the treasurer for the Rumford Point Community Athletic Association, he worked to improve the baseball field at Rumford Point. He has served on the boards of the Greater Rumford Community Center, Black Mountain of Maine, SAD 43, Region 9 and the Western Foothills RSU 10 school district. Rumford Town Manager Carlo Pulla spoke about Sterling's achievements. Also receiving awards was Grange Member Wendell Easter from Rumford Point. He was given a Certificate of Service for being a 70-year member. Wendell also received a certificate of appreciation for his efforts in keeping the Grange active. Some of Wendell's relatives reported good memories from years past. Other activities during the Open House included an informative lecture about spruce gum by David Fuller and a luncheon.

progress. The clapboard portion of the project is done. Next is the flooring and fixing the door. Later on comes the painting of the building.

Historical Society members that called this week to check in were Bob and Judy Bishop, Robert and Joanne Stewart and Norm Buttrick. We called Howard and "Steve" Reiche to check in with them and bring them up to date on the station.

No fires allowed! Hanover Forest Fire Warden Chris Howe has announced that no outside fire permits will be issued in Hanover until there is a significant change in the local weather pattern. Although there have been periods with wet, soggy weather the recent hot and dry conditions have dried out forest fuels including blow-downs from recent wind storms.

The fire index has been at Level Four daily. Assisting Warden Howe with his decision were the Maine Forest Service and Rumford Fire Department. Rumford Fire Department has also banned permits for outside fires.

Recently a campfire along South Shore Road re-ignited while the property owners slept in the middle of the night requiring a response from Rumford Fire Department from their Rumford Point substation.

My, oh my why do I find it always so difficult to come up with the first sentence. I have been staring at the monitor for a good five minutes and sharing this is the best I came up with, ha ha. Now with this task accomplished I can get straight to the news.

Coach Echoo Corliss wants to thank all the kids and parents for a great softball season; and what a season the Woodstock Team had! They are undefeated with a perfect score of 10 wins and 0 losses. Congratulations to an outstanding team! Looks like another State Championship for the Rebels in the future, huh?

Belated Happy Birthday wishes go to Ryan Coolidge (July 25) and Tina Coolidge (July 26). We all hope you each had a wonderful day!

Last week Jarrod and Paige Crockett had lunch with his Mom, Aline Dupont, at the Bethel Inn. They had lots of fun out on the patio with the sun shining.

There is also some nice vacation news. Chris, Karl, and Cyndy Olson went to Alaska again earlier this summer to visit Kane. Karl was only able to be there one week this year. They went king salmon fishing on the Nushagak River the entire time while he was there. As a matter of fact, one of Karl's connecting flights on his way to Dillingham got canceled and the flight he was able to reschedule had him missing the tide they had to hit to get up the river in Kane's boat. Karl ended up getting a flight to Kane's campsite with one of the many bush pilots who take dozens of trips up the river every day during the salmon runs. He enjoyed the opportunity to see the river from the air and a trip that takes two hours by boat took 17 minutes by plane! They brought home 40 pounds of delicious wild Alaskan king salmon.

This year they saw so many moose with their newborn calves, brown bear, eagles, and one day watched about 40 beluga whales chase Sockeye in Bristol Bay. Of course, the best part about being in Alaska is spending time with Kane. He continues to enjoy living, hunting, fishing, and working there in the bush.

I think everyone will enjoy the first list of town names (remember the suggested Town by Phineas Frost made up of Milton, Gore and eastern parts of Bethel): Frostville, Frosthaven, Frostberg, Middle Town, Pinhook, and Dip-in-the-Road. Keep those suggestions coming, please, by calling me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net.

This week's new Trivia question was submitted by a reader and here it is: In 1955, 1956, and 1957 three local areas converted to dial phone. Which were they and what were they commonly called?

In closing I want to say thank you for making this so much fun.

Have a great week everyone.

This is the last column for July. Sunday evening brought relief from the hot and humid weather, but I bet we have not seen the last of it.

My brother, Steve McLain, had some help on a little project at home this past weekend. He had a visit from his son, Brad McLain, and wife, Carole Mason, and Ryan Seames was also on hand to help.

Steve had stopped at Swain's farmstand and bought some of their cucumbers and told me that they were delicious. Hugh and I stopped Saturday and found out that he was right. There is nothing like a "real" cucumber.

We have picked a couple from our garden and soon will have a lot more. This past weekend, I bought the ingredients, so we could be ready to make the old-fashioned sour pickles that we all enjoy.

Lise McLain stopped to visit with her father, Gerard Dupont, at Ledgeview this past and the Howard Pond Preservation Association began with the first assessment exploration at cottages and homes in the Howard Pond area. Keith Smith and Kent Nelson from Maine Forest Service, Dot Adams and Irv and Barb Robinson representing HPPA, Chief Bob Chase and Ed Cary from Rumford Fire Department and Clem Worcester representing Hanover traveled from cottage to cottage to learn of problem areas that could be fire hazards. They also examined roads for access by fire equipment. Items watched for around buildings were forest litter on roofs and gutters. Also, owners should be aware of piles of leaves and brush near the buildings. One of the most prevalent hazards was firewood stacked under decks. Owners should inspect overhead power lines that touch or are near trees and call the power company if they need trimming. Items often not displayed are identifying signs. The E911 house number should be prominently displayed at the entrance to your property with numbers that are at least four inches high. If the street sign at the beginning of the street is missing please call the Hanover Town Office and report it. If you do not know your E911 number call the Town Office; they can help with that. The officials attending the assessment were very interested in historic reports about a fire on Nov. 9, 1975, during which six cottages burned in a midnight fire on Howard Pond Road near the dam. After the Maine Forest Service completes their report another meeting will be scheduled to discuss the results.

The next leg of the 16th annual Source to the Sea Trek left the Hanover Boat Ramp on Thursday, July 21, with 10 adult paddlers and 11 youngsters with four counselors from the Bryant Pond 4-H Camp and Learning Center. The group of 25 kayakers and canoes made the trip to Rumford on a hot and humid day. They finished the day at the boat ramp near McDonald's in Rumford. Ten years ago there was a dedication ceremony for the Hanover Boat Ramp that was built in cooperation with Maine Fish and Wildlife, Mead Corporation and the Town of Hanover.

Congratulations go this week to Scott Terkelsen for achieving high honors for the spring semester at Central Maine Community College in Auburn. Receiving honors at CMCC were Maria Delucia and Leeann Gross. Good work.

There is a change in the date for the next Planning Board Meeting. It will be Wednesday, Aug. 10, at 6 p.m. in the Town Office. It would ordinarily have been on Aug. 3.

The Hanover Selectboard met July 19. The Board answered questions from citizens and they were complimented by a group of citizens. At the next meeting on Aug. 16 there will be a presentation by a representative of Central Maine Power Co., who will provide information about installation of "Smart Meters" in Hanover later this year.

Andover

By JANE RICH

Flower lovers should notice the new plantings at the tennis court and in front of the Town Hall.

This project has really spruced up our town and will be noted by visitors especially on Olde Home Day.

The Andover Historical Society announces the 60th annual flower show to be held in conjunction with Olde Home Day festivities. The theme this year is "Main Street Andover" and the categories are as follows: Town Common - arrangement of your choice; Barnes Merchantile and Ice Cream Parlor - Wild Flowers; Blacksmith shop - metal container; Ray Thurston Farm and Logging Operation - professional arrangements; Twitchell Hotel - flowers in a cup and saucer; Old Post Office - remembering someone special; Lang's Barber shop - your best house plant; I.E. Mills General Store - arrangement featuring a book or song title; McAllister's Telephone Office - single specimen in a bottle, bottles provided by the show staff; Ethel McAllister's Hats and Notions is for children 12 and under.

Entries will be received between 5:30-8 p.m. Friday evening and must be picked up on Saturday between 3 (not earlier) and 4:30 p.m.

Entry forms for the Garden Contest which will be judged on Thursday, Aug. 4, include the categories of flowers, veggies, mixed, organic and flower design (container and hangers) and the Violet Swain category (single Genus), as well as new gardens up to three years, established four years and older.

Applications for the Garden Contest are available in local stores as well as Olde Home Day Schedules, the Photography Contest forms. Don't forget to get your T shirt and button.

The Andover Educational Fund met on Saturday morning to plan for the annual fall fundraising campaign which provides scholarship monies for students residing in Andover and continuing their education. The board welcomed new member Tina Farrington. There is one vacancy on the board and they are looking for a community-minded person interested in the education of our young people. While over the last 25 years the bulk of the work has been done by Sharon Hutchins, the tasks are now being divided among all the board members. Therefore, there is a need for a new member to be committed to their portion of the work which has awarded over $500,000 in scholarships from the Cutting Endowment as well as administering The John and Eunice Fox Scholarship, The Sweat Family Scholarship Trust, and the Anna Thurston Scholarship. This is a great program that has benefited many Telstar graduates residing in Andover.

Dick and Polly Johnston are here for their annual month in Andover. Polly reports that when they got off the plane in Portland it was 103 - not exactly what they're used to in Spanaway, Wash. Their daughter Julie and husband John were there to meet them. They are staying in a different camp this year at Roxbury Pond as the usual one has been rented by people working on the wind farm project. Their other daughter, Joye, will arrive in Andover on Aug. 4, just in time for Olde Home Day.

Greetings and hello! I know, I know - I have been very slack. My only defense is that we have been very busy around here. I think that the heat can be blamed in some small part - my mind just would not work!

Now, perhaps a bit of rain would help cool things off a bit. Hot is one thing, but with hazy clouds looming overhead, it kinda makes it feel less like summer and more of just a heat wave.

Dyana's birthday is this week, so, if you have her contact info., send her a birthday message. I am sure she'd love to hear from you.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week!

A long-time very good friend passed away last week, leaving a lifetime of fond memories. Phil Korhonen and I were friends from the time they moved into a house on the Flat Road when we were 8 or 9 years old. We played marbles during recess at the West Bethel School, worked for farmer Edmund Smith summers picking berries, cucumbers and corn, hoeing some of the same crops, hauling and stowing away thousands of bales of hay, learned to ride bicycles together to any activity we wanted to participate in, whether movies in Bethel, fishing or just "hanging out." We both lost our fathers at an early age and learned the art of milking cows and "dressing" chickens, "lugging" and later cutting wood to keep the home fires burning on our run-down family farms, and repairing our tired bicycles that were long past their prime.

Memories of these and hundreds of other fun activities dimmed as we both led different and long-separated lives until a few years ago. We were still friends but somehow did not get together very often until a few weeks ago when I learned that Phil had a terminal illness; then the memories flooded back, and I made a much belated effort to re-connect. I took him fishing at a couple old haunts and visited him a few times when he got too ill to get outside. We reminisced about old times and had some laughs. I am sorry I did not do more and feel guilty about letting so much time elapse between our get-togethers, over the years; I guess that happens to a lot of folks when they lose a loved one, but I still feel bad. Two or three weeks ago, I wrote about a robin that had her babies "murdered" by a hungry hawk. Well, she's back. She laid four new eggs in the same nest and is now working to incubate them. I hope she is more successful this time! I can check on the eggs any time by just looking down through the space between deck planks just above the nest. The mother is apparently not discouraged by our basement door which opens not four feet from her nest where I have spent quite a lot of time bringing in next year's firewood!

Leslie wants to let everyone know that the quilt is complete. Nancy, secretary for the Upton Ladies Association, asked me to pass on the following information. As part of Upton Fun Day, they will sponsor a pie contest at 9 a.m. (cooking, not throwing or eating). They will have a three-legged race and a sack race beginning at 1 p.m. and will offer items to sell through the day. Contestants should bring their pies to the Ladies Aid building between 8 and 9 a.m. The Ladies Aid will offer breakfast to vendors starting at 6 a.m. There are some vendor sites still available. For more information please contact Charlotte at 533-2061 or e-mail pep1dom@megalink.net or Carrol at 533-2028 or e-mail smilinggabby@yahoo.com. The Upton House Annual Charity Yard Sale was a success. Charlotte was pleased to

THIS FRENCH CLASS TOURS FRANCE—Michael Gilbert and his Telstar French class students recently returned from a tour of Paris and France. The group traveled the Northern coast, stopping at Normandy, Le Mont St-Michel and St. Malo. Several days were spent exploring Paris and the Loire Valley. They toured several chateaus - including Azay-le-Rideau and De Chenonceau. Others touring with the group were Dr. Richard and Karen Decarolis, Amanda and Chris Snow, Robin and Greg Fraser, Joy Gelsomino and Karen Swan. The group is gathered here before dinner at the Abbaye Royale de Fontevraud. Front: Carson McKay, Gabby Conrad, Emily Bellinger, Susan Newkirk and Emily Decarolis. Upton Historical Society had their monthly meeting Saturday. Their part of Upton Fun Day was the most discussed topic. The following are some of the events they have scheduled so far. Authors Randall, Probert, and Stanley Howe will be at the school to promote their books, give presentations, and talk with people. The society will sell tickets for a guided tour of the historic home of author Louise Dickinson Rich (the tour will be Sept. 3). They will have Rich's book, "We took to the Woods," for sale. They will also have tee shirts with the "Winter House" printed on the back, and more for sale. The society will also have their collection of artifacts and documents on display for the public to view. They will have a workshop at the school Sunday, Aug. 14, at 10 a.m. and at 1 p.m. they will hold their monthly meeting. The heat has finally dissipated. We can all breathe a little better. Tasha is not spending all day in the house. She likes sleeping near the air conditioner. Then she spends her nights on the porch. Go figure. In any case, some days she runs down the ramp, others she barely makes it. She is definitely feeling her years. Dave and I are trying to manage the heat. He does better most days, but some days I do better because I am better at hydrating and have my little fan that also blows water. Quite the arrangement; I believe it was less than $5 and worth every penny of it.

Last week I meant to talk about all the folks I got to see working Sundays. I usually work Saturdays, but Joe and I changed for two weeks in a row and I got to see old friends. It is always great to see Annie and Ted and others on Saturday. Last Sunday I saw Suzanne, Linda, Deena,

Republicans to host Poliquin

The Oxford County Republican Committee members are honored to host Maine State Treasurer Bruce L. Poliquin at the next monthly meeting to be held at Fryeburg Fairgrounds on Aug. 9. Mr. Poliquin will be sharing information about the hard work that he and his team have done in the past seven months. Goals have been set and many have been accomplished. There will be time for questions after his presentation.

Mr. Poliquin is a Waterville native. He and his son still live there now. He worked his way through school and graduated Harvard University in 1976. From there he has worked at a bank in Chicago, a pension fund consulting company in Connecticut, and an independent investment firm in New York.

There will be time to catch up with old friends and meet new ones during the social hour starting at 5:30. Dinner will be served at 6:30; the cost is just $8 per person. The Fryeburg Republican Town Committee will be preparing the enjoyable meal.

All registered Republicans are always welcome to come to these meetings. It is important to be a part of the team that will support your local candidates. There are always fun and exciting gatherings and fundraisers. If you need more information on this event or other questions feel free to contact Loretta Mikols at 875-2229.

MAINE EQUINE SUPERSHOWDEO WINNER—The Ellis River Riders recently held a versatility trail challenge at the first annual Maine Equine Supershowdeo. This event is timed. The horse and rider must pass through an obstacle course and are given a score of 0-5 for each obstacle based on horsemanship and the willingness of the horse to perform the task. There was a 30-second limit to complete each of a series of 17 obstacles. The top five fastest overall runs received bonus points, which were added to their score so that time and precision both count toward the overall score. The top six adult riders received cash prizes and the first-place rider also received a belt buckle and a trophy. The top youth rider received a gift certificate donated by Aubuchon Hardware in Rumford and both youth riders received gift bags donated by Sable Oak Equestrian Center. Many door prizes were also distributed through a free raffle. Sherry Johnson Trafton, an internationally-acclaimed judge and winner of the Equine Affaire's versatile horse competition, judged the event. The final results: Adults: 1st, Tony DeLaTorre (shown here with Trafton) riding FF Jacobs Tune; 2nd, Jamie Leo riding Stormy Knight; 3rd, Pam Edwards riding Splash This Chip; 4th, Sam Lindley riding Mouse; 5th, Chris Lombard riding Rocky; 6th, Deb Cayer riding Morning Son. Youth: 1st, Paige Garcia riding Red Fury; 2nd, Shaynah Seames riding Rio Wolf Creek.

BONNEY ELECTED DEPARTMENT PRESIDENT—The Waterville Grand Hotel was the site of the recent 99th annual Maine Department Convention of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War. New officers elected for 2011-2013 included Elsie B. Bonney (front, center right) of Bethel as Department President.

BENCH REDEDICATED—Just inside the gates of the Commonwealth Mall Gardens in Boston is a bench with a plaque that reads, "Erected in 1931 by Massachusetts Department Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War 1861-1865." Engraved into the backrest, faded by 80 years of New England weather, are the words, "In Memory of Our Fathers, the Grand Army of the Republic." After many years, the bench had fallen into disrepair. Thanks to the National Dept. of Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, the bench has been repaired. The Massachusetts Dept. no longer exists, but recently members of the Maine DUVCW traveled there to rededicate the bench. Pictured are, from left: Lesley Dean, Past National President; Elsie Bonney; Vicky Meyers, Jr. Vice President of the Dept. of Maine; Sue Kettinger, member of Judith Grover Tent #17; Sally Sawyer, Past Maine Dept. President; and Margaret Porkorny, a member of the Friends of the Public Garden.

Weeks Act 100th celebration

The White Mountain National Forest and several partner organizations are hosting the Weeks Act Centennial Festival at the base of Mt. Washington Auto Road on July 29 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. This family-friendly festival marks the 100th Anniversary of the Weeks Act and is free to the public.

The Weeks Act, a landmark piece of conservation legislation passed in 1911, allowed for the creation of National Forests east of the Mississippi River - including the White Mountain National Forest.

Thomas Wagner, forest supervisor for the White Mountain National Forest, said he's really looking forward to the festival. "I'm excited to celebrate and share the centennial of this important piece of history, the Weeks Act, with our partners and the public," Wagner stated. "We invite everybody to come out and enjoy the festivities."

The Main Pavilion will have music, storytelling, and historical interpretations. The Forest and Family Experience Pavilion will provide activities for all ages, including a fun and challenging obstacle course for the kids.

The Woodlands Pavilion gives you the opportunity to watch some exceptional woodworking demonstrations, and you'll get the chance to learn how to build a bird house from a woodworking expert! Food and refreshments will be available all day long in the Festival Food Pavilion. Additional information regarding the Weeks Act and the festival's schedule of events is available at www.weekslegacy.org and www.fs.fed.us/r9/white, or call (603) 536-6100.

NAME CHANGE FOR LOCAL LANDMARK

Chandler Funeral Homes & Cremation Service, Greenleaf Chapel located at 37 Vernon Street in Bethel is committed to the community of Bethel. The Greenleaf name is part of Bethel's history and we wanted to give it due respect within our name. Many smaller communities are without a local funeral home, which places residents at a real inconvenience when they are forced to travel to a neighboring community for funeral services. Chandler Funeral Homes are located in smaller communities; in fact, serving small Maine communities is our focus.

The recent name of the funeral home in Bethel was changed to reflect the actual ownership of the firm; quality, care and service all remain the same. Funeral prearrangement and pre-payment represents a very good investment for families, both financially and emotionally. Pre-need allows families to make difficult decisions in advance of a family death thus relieving surviving family members from having to make decisions at a difficult time. According to Mr. Dana Chandler, "It's important to me that the many families in Bethel and surrounding towns that have made pre-arrangements and pre-payments with us know their money is secure." We invite families to telephone our office at 207-824-2100 to visit Chandler Funeral Homes & Cremation Service, Greenleaf Chapel, to inspect our facilities, and review your funeral pre-arrangement files. Or, telephone for an appointment to discuss funeral costs, cremation options, and any other questions you may have regarding end of life decisions.
